

UNIVERSITY of PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA 4

DEPARTMENT OF DERMATOLOGY
AND SYPHILOLOGY
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
EDWARD D. DELAMATER, M.D.
~~Associate~~ Research Professor

June 21, 1951

Dr. Joshua Lederberg
Department of Bacteriology
University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Josh:

It was a pleasure to see you and Mrs. Lederberg at the meetings, and to hear your material. I am still sorry that I was too beat to stay up for all of your presentations.

As I told Miss Lively, I am sending a copy of the manuscript on methods which will appear shortly in Stain Technology, and which you and she may find useful. I am also including a preparation of megatherium which I think will perhaps help in orienting you in the analysis of your own material. I hope so. I find that I do not have immediately available an extra photographic copy of one of my plates, but I plan to have some of these made and will send you one at a later date.

I find this business of getting reorganized after a period of being away is a pain, but gradually things are becoming properly oriented.

Jean joins me in hoping that things are going well with you. We hope to see you soon.

Sincerely yours,

d
Edward D. DeLamater, M. D.
Research Professor

EDD/aj

Encl.